

PRINTED CIRCULAR REVEALS CLUE TO ANARCHISTS' PLOT

Cheap Paper in Mail Box Resembles That Sent Before Outrages in 1919.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, September 18.—Receipts by Department of Justice agents of a radical circular, signed "American Anarchist Fighters," found in a mail box at 11-58 a.m. Thursday, furnished the first tangible clue, they said, to the identity of the persons who were responsible for the explosion in Wall street, which three minutes later killed thirty-five persons, injured 200 others and caused property damage running into millions.

In making public the circular, which was printed on cheap paper, seven by eleven inches, Chief William J. Flynn of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice called attention to the fact that the circular was the same as one sent in a letter on June 2, 1919, were wrapped in circulars announcing the coming of the revolution and signed "Anarchist Fighters."

The circular read:
"Remember, we will not tolerate any longer. Free the political prisoners or it will be sure death for all of you."
"American Anarchist Fighters."

Contained Miscellaneous Words.
The circulars were not included in envelopes, nor did they bear addresses. They were placed in the mail box at 11-58, when the next collection was made, and they were found. Chief Flynn said the circulars were not included in envelopes, nor did they bear addresses. They were placed in the mail box at 11-58, when the next collection was made, and they were found.

Chief Flynn declared there was a striking similarity between the circulars found after the Wall street bomb plot in June, 1919, and those found in the mail box. He said, as printed on cheap paper, and contained several misspelled words. The circulars found in the mail box, he explained, were apparently printed hurriedly with rubber stamps, and contained several misspelled words. The circulars found in the mail box, he explained, were apparently printed hurriedly with rubber stamps, and contained several misspelled words.

Discovery of the circular, Chief Flynn said, "makes the plan of the bomb plot clear." He said the circulars were not included in envelopes, nor did they bear addresses. They were placed in the mail box at 11-58, when the next collection was made, and they were found.

There is no doubt at all in my mind that this is about the only copy of the circular that was left. It was found in the mail box at 11-58, when the next collection was made, and they were found. There is no doubt at all in my mind that this is about the only copy of the circular that was left.

Other warnings found.
Mark O. Prentiss, chairman of the United States committee of Foreign Credits, turned over to the police a post card which he said was delivered to him last week ago. The post card was addressed to "Mr. Prentiss" and was signed "American Anarchist Fighters."

CLUES TO PLOT TO BURN WALL STREET FOUND

NEW YORK, September 18.—The New York Tribune says:
Further evidence that the bomb plot was designed for widespread destruction has been brought out in the examination of three rusty and battered cans which were picked up at the scene of the blast.

These cans, with other odds and ends, were turned over to the police immediately after the explosion. The cans were subjected to a thorough inspection by experts at police headquarters.

The opinion first prevailed that the three cans might have contained explosives. Later it was found the cans had been filled with gasoline and kerosene. Experts were unanimous in the belief that the plotters included conflagrations in their plans for a general destruction of the financial district.

Inspector Lahey said the presence of gasoline and kerosene probably accounted for the fact that the clothing of many of the explosion victims was burned off.

Dr. Simon Greets
SCHOOL TEACHERS
AND EXECUTIVES
Declares Education Should Have Strategic Place in
D. C. Activities.

Education in Washington should occupy a "strategic place," Dr. Simon Greets, president of the board of education, declared today in a message of greeting to the teachers and officers of the public schools, who resume their duties Monday after the three-month vacation.

The message was read to the entire school personnel at various meetings held today throughout the school system, where final preparations were made for the opening of the school year.

Entering upon a new school year fraught with great opportunities for progress and with even greater responsibilities to realize it, said Dr. Greets, "I greet the entire teaching and administrative force of our public school system, and we commend the significance of education for the security and advancement of our democracy."

FOLLOWING THE EXPLOSION IN NEW YORK FINANCIAL DISTRICT

Left: United States regulars from Governors Island on guard in front of the United States subtreasury at Wall and Broad streets. The troops were sent at the request of Assistant Treasurer Martin Vogel to protect the $500,000,000 in gold in the subtreasury vaults. The building was badly damaged by the blast.

BLACKSMITH WHO SHOD DEATH-CART HORSE FOUND

Man Certain He Knows Owner of Animal. Rusty Red Wagon Similar to Those Used by Street Cleaners.

By the Associated Press.
HACKENSACK, N. J., September 18.—Identify the blacksmith who shod the horse found dead near the scene of Thursday's explosion in New York's financial district is known to the Department of Justice, according to a statement made here by William M. Mead, chief clerk in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. This blacksmith, he added, claims to know the man who owned the horse.

A "peculiar incident of the whole affair," added Mr. Mead, "is that a letter was received on the 15th of July, before the explosion, warning every one to stay away from Wall street between 2 and 3 o'clock on the day of the 18th. This letter came from Buffalo and was sent by a lawyer who was believed to have been in the employ of a prominent foreign consular agent."

He declared the cart came from New York and was driven by a man who spoke with a strong Scotch accent. Just before 12 o'clock Thursday morning he said that he and his partner were doing business on Broad street where the new stock exchange addition is being built, when they were ordered away by a man in civilian clothes whom they took to be an officer. He added that they turned their horse around, passed the Morgan bank and went to the corner of Wall and Nassau streets, where they resumed business.

"My wagon was on the right side of Wall street, looking toward Broad," he added, "and across the street from me was an automobile. We began to do a good business with the noon crowd. Then some one sang out to me in a Scotch accent, 'Pull your horse up, buddy.' I looked up at him and his wagon."

"He must have come from New York, because I was watching the car on Broadway all the time. My partner was doing the selling. If he came from New York, he must have missed him. When I pulled out of the way he went straight down Wall street, and about a minute later he came back, knocked down and didn't remember anything until I came to in the Broad Street Hospital."

The blacksmith was a bum wagon with dark, dirty red paint, something like a dirt wagon and about twice the size of the vehicle he had been driving. It was a rusty red color and was drawn by an old brown horse.

"The horse was dark complexioned, unshaven, wiry man, probably thirty-five or forty years old, and dressed in working clothes and a dark cap. He seemed to be about five feet six inches tall. He had dark hair."

CHILD IS KILLED BY BOMB AT CAMP MEADE "BATTLE"

Investigation Ordered Into Casualties Among 15,000 Spectators Who Saw Mimic Assault Upon "Village."

In spite of precautions taken to safeguard spectators and participants during the sham battle at Camp Meade yesterday afternoon, one child was killed by a fragment from a bursting bomb, a former service man was out on the foot and a woman sustained a bruised shoulder from other fragments. In other respects the battle, representing the capture of Mont-faucon two years ago, was carried through without a hitch, and was enjoyed by a crowd of more than 15,000 from Baltimore and Washington, many of whom were former service men.

Bomb Kills Child.
Carl Dornbush, four years old, of Brooklyn, Md., was killed when a falling paper bomb burst near where he was watching the battle with his uncle, Henry F. Kuehnle, also of Brooklyn, and other members of the family. The child was struck on the forehead by a fragment from the bursting bomb, which fell from a tree near the camp hospital, where the physicians said death had been instantaneous.

Harry F. Volkman of 1324 1st street northeast was struck on the right foot by a fragment from a bursting bomb, which fell from a tree near the camp hospital, where the physicians said death had been instantaneous.

A bruised shoulder was suffered by Mrs. Dorothy Guntz of 1327 East Wisconsin street, who was struck on the shoulder by a fragment from a bursting bomb, which fell from a tree near the camp hospital, where the physicians said death had been instantaneous.

Shortly before the battle began and for the greater part of its duration guards along the Baltimore road attempted to get the crowd to move farther from the danger zone, warning them that they were not in a safe place, but the majority of the spectators refused to give up their place of vantage for one less exposed. Whether those struck by fragments were in this part of the field the inquiry probably will determine.

No artillery was used in the battle, the effect of a barrage being produced by explosives fired from trench mortars. These mortars were so placed that their extreme range was 200 yards short of the Baltimore road. Newspaper photographers had been refused permission to occupy a part of the ground upon which the spectators pressed about the time the action began.

Men who served in some of the more spectacular actions in northern France were unanxious to give praise of the realism of the spectacle yesterday. The sight of a number of rockets, set off promptly at 2 o'clock, was a signal for a roar of bursting shells on what was supposed to be the German front line position, and from opposite hill crests roared the "rat-tat-tat" of machine guns.

Alexandria.
Alexandria common council held an adjourned session last night and adopted a resolution appropriating the sum of $5,000 to pay the public school teachers of the city of Alexandria. On the recommendation of the joint committee on light and finance the sum of $5,000 was appropriated for the purchase of a new engine house and a new fire alarm bell.

Rockville.
The directors of the Montgomery County Agricultural Society met here yesterday afternoon and received the report of the receipts and expenditures incident to the recent Rockville fair. The total receipts were in the neighborhood of $15,500, or several thousand dollars in excess of the largest receipts of any previous Rockville fair. The society is planning to do something like $2,500 to pay all expenses of the fair proper.

JAPAN NAMES ENVOYS.
TOKIO, September 18.—Baron Gonsuke Hayashi and Viscount Kikujiro Ishii, Japanese ambassadors to England and France, respectively, have been named as Japanese delegates to the league of nations conference at Geneva. Baron Taniguchi Megato, formerly financial commissioner to the United States, will be chief delegate.

Large sheets of canvases had been stretched across the windows, from which every short thing was blown. The glass dome in the main banking room of the building was in danger of being blown out. The glass in the partitions of the various rooms along the counters was missing.

The staff of the banking house were all in their places. With the exception of Thomas Joyce, killed outright by the explosion, and John A. Donohue, one of the only men of the foreign export department, who died at Bellevue Hospital in the morning, and two other men, who were injured, every member or employee of the firm was in his or her place, from Henry Hudson, president of the firm, to the partners, who were out of town at the time of the explosion, and Julius Spencer Morgan, son of J. P. Morgan, who refused to permit minor cuts to keep him from work, to the humblest messenger and filing clerk in the firm's employ.

Bank Looks Like Hospital.
Upon Mr. Lamont's invitation, a group of reporters entered the building, and every short thing was blown. The glass dome in the main banking room of the building was in danger of being blown out. The glass in the partitions of the various rooms along the counters was missing.
